The Million-Dollar Kid "Paid in Full" Squares Accounts With Cheap Manhattan.

ONG ACRE SQUARE sprouted a sturdy young author last night Others may say "promising," but this case calls for something stronger, for Mr. Eugene Walter, in the courage of his youth and the power of his | ad, has seen fit to deal with brutal facts, not with pretty promises. \ e so many "promising" authors in our scrapbooks already that we can well afford to take Mr. Walter at his word. He speaks the last word in the title of his play, "Paid in Full." That settles it!

"Paid in Full adds another to the list of unpleasant but interesting plays to which the paying public is gradually becaming inured. Little by little we ar being weaned from the sweets of the dose and refuse to swallow it, but another is instantly poured out, and we make less of a face over it the second time. "Irene Wycherly" had a bad Full" calls to account one who is even worse-and there you are back in is very hard on husbands.

The husband in the case last night flat. You couldn't blame him for that, of course; but you felt that he might have had a little more consideration for his wife when she was doing her best to be happy in four rooms without a "girl." But, no; Joseph Brooks was an unsocial socialist who found fault with everything and everybody, including his employer, Capt. Williams, who "called only to be "called down" for not paying him higher wages. He raised! another row when Emma declined an invitation to join a theatre party because she had "nothing to wear." Then their good friend, Jim Smith, offered to Frank Sheridan as Capt. Williams. ta.

Brooks refused to be an "object of charity"-and the upshot of the whole first act was that Joe and Emma went to a "show" with no one but themselves for But domestic wretchedness in a Harlem flat is always a source of pleasure to Broadway, and it was made more than ordinarily interesting last night by the acting of an excellent little cast. Miss Lillian Albertson displayed remarkable patience, and even more remarkable red hair, as the young wife; Mr. Tully Marshall lost his temper with great success as the husband; Mr. Frank Sheridan gave a salty flavor to the old sea wolf who had become President of a steamship company, and Mr. Ben Johnson made Jim Smith seem as though he had just walked in from the street. Miss Hattle Russell had an easy time of it as Emma's mother, and Miss Oza Waldrop bushed herself with looking preity in the utterly useless role of Emma's sister.

You hungered for new faces when the family moved into a "semi-fashionabl hotel" down in the district known to telephone book students as "Bryant," and you grew a bit tired of hotel life that was nothing but "talk," until it developed that Joe had paid for all this "grandeur" with money stolen from the steamship company. After an ominous visit from Villiams he blurted out the truth to Emma. Down went your He had not a leg to stand on by the time he had finished his lame excuses. That man Williams drove me he yelped. "He went away so I could steal the money." Then he turned and blamed it all on his wife. He had stolen, he said, so that she might have clothes and the ease she had longed for.

This was bad enough, but when the weakling proposed that his wife go to Williams s bachelor quarters and save him at any price, your collar began to get too tight for comfort. The fellow's advice to his wife was more than any audience should be asked to stand tams's apartment was almost as dis-matter of "death before dishonor," as they cry in the thrillers, he showed a However, if you desire to continue the clean hand, and explained that he had only been putting her to a test.

He stories before he beneved that he showed a friendship you should write a note, ex-This sudden change on Williams's part seemed to good to be true-but per- plaining the situation. haps the author knew his man. At any rate, Emma got what she had come for without any cost to herself, and she went back home with Jim, who had been His Inditation Refused.

hanging around preparing to shoot Williams, if necessary. Nothing remained but a comparatively weak last act in which Emma walked out of her "semi-fashionable" apartment like a sister of losen's Nora, leaving ber husband to say good night to the audience. In using his weakest character to end his play, the author greatly weakened the impression "Paid in Full" had made. Mr. Marshall, however, had no reason to be ashamed of his acting. Un-some day find a better husband in Jim, who had won her sympathy by telling ber he had been "shy" a father all his life. And perhaps they would live in a wholly fashionable hotel! Mr. Walter evidently knows "hotel society." "Paid in Full" squares accounts with chean Manhattan CHARLES DARNTON.

Health and Beauty. By Margaret Hubbard Ayer.

A Lettered Lyric.

N the garden, a maid he C's,

For to his game she's Y's.

She has such deep blue I's

He speaks to her—she's at her E's,

He says, "May I help shell those P's?"

"My dear, you are a little T's."

She says, "Leave me now or L's

I'll think you are one of those J

From this she takes her Q's.

And overturn a hive of B's."

To make his exit, he SA's.

Wants a Hair Dve.

Wants a Hair Dye.

L—I never recommend self-applied hair dyes. They are always dimout greating of cantharides, I counce oil of English lavender, 1-2 dram, oil of rose mary, 1-2 dram, Apply to the roots of the hair once or twice a day. It is seldom satisfactory when an amateur attempts to dye her own hair. However, if you wish to make a trial, I print below the formula requested:

Several Questions.

Improvement. Here is a formula for a content of allowed to go out with him until I consented, and now that I am until I consented, and now that I am out for a allowed to go out with him he goes with another. What shall I do to gain his love?

B. Mc. He is too sure of you. Be indifferent to him and accept the attention of other should be kept clean.

Several Questions. print below the formula requested:

| Description | Descri rectified spirit, 1-2 fluid ounce. The curly hair, and unless the hair is long above is full strength and will make the it is impossible to resort to the usual hair almost black. Diluted with water it will stain the hair from dara to light brown.

The Child's Hair.

Rs. A. E. P.—It is sometimes possible to resort to the usual methods for keeping the hair in curl. As for the red cheeks, if you lead a wholesome life, eating nourishing food taking plenty of outdoor exercise and sleeping at least seven hours a night, you will acquire the healthy glow you so much desire.

sible to Induce a child's hair to Camomile Tea Again. curl or wave by constantly train-IVI curl or wave by constantly training it. When it is a little damp twist it in ringlets around the fingers or a pencil. Encourage it with the brush and fluff it out several times a day. There is a superstitution to the effect that hair should be clipped at the full of the moon, but it is merely a superstitution, and if you simply clip the ends of your hair when they are split or have your hair dresser singe them.

It doesn't matter whether the moon is

The Masher and the moid if the Maid is a superstitution, and if you simply clip the ends of your hair when they are split or have your hair dresser singe them.

The Masher and the moon is the formula of the maid is a superstitution to the effect the sun. This will impart the reddish excellent for the scalp.

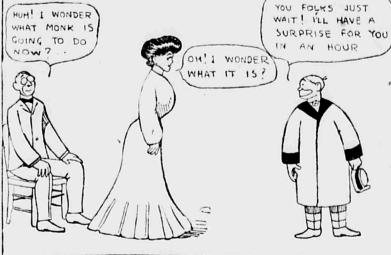

For Pink Cheeks.

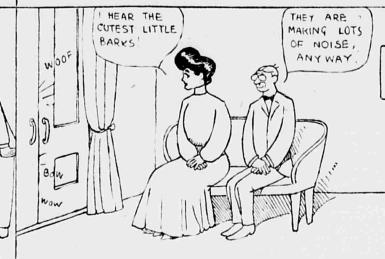

G.-Plenty of sleep, fresh air and wholesome food will give you what you want. If you are run down and debilitated you had better see a doctor, who will probably build you up with a good tonic.

An Oily Scalp.

L L-The best cure for excessive oiliness of the hair is thorough massage, which regulates the distribution of the natural oil and loosens up the scalp. At first the hair will seem oilier than ever, but keep up the treat-ment faithfully and you will soon see

Betty Vincent Gives On Courtship and Marriage

He Is Angry With Her.

OR the past year I have loved a boy who seems to love me, but words from which the wife shrank. She

Tully Marshall as Joseph Brooks.

Tully Marshall as Joseph Brooks.

Tully Marshall as Joseph Brooks.

Lillian Albertson as Emma Brooks.

I have plenty of boy friends, but I

I don't think the young lady cares for out every Sunday, but she only day. Could you tell me how often I bappy as this ending was, there was at least the implication that Emma might fuses to go out with me every Sunday?

with whom she wishes to spend Sunday. Unless you are engaged to her, you cannot expect to monopolize her time. Every other Sunday is often enough to take her out, but if you wish to see more of the young lady, cannot you call during the week?

He Is Too Sure of Her.

AM eighteen and am deeply in love with a young man of twenty-two. I have been going with him about five months. My parents at first objected to Ask When You May Call. | She Likes the Younger.

PICTURE SUMS

What country in Europe does this sum spell?

Betty:

Rethe past year I have loved a boy who seems to love me, but who has not spoken to me for who has not spoken to me for the w past two weeks, because another again. She said she would see me later fellow, whom I dislike very much, told on. Since then I have not heard from him that I had said some disagreeable her. Does she care for me? How can things about him. Do you think he did I tell? I would like to continue the

Tully Marshall as Joseph Brooks.

The Captain used wint to be lieve what the your fined series before dishonor," as the stories before dishonor," as they are made to "death before dishonor," as they are made to continue the should not wish you to call be when the made it as will give him up should not wish you to give up all your fineds for him to any of them.

Tully Marshall as Joseph Brooks.

Tully Marshall as Joseph Brooks.

I do not think the your fined believe what the fellow said: acquaintance.

A. M.

Casually mention during the convergency of the fillow said: acquaintance.

I do not think you refined so for he did not have good demned spy, or a treacherous Indian. The boy should have asked you about the case her with the stories before he believed them. The boy should have asked you about the stories before he believed them. A. M.

I do not think the your fined only not fined so for the fillow said: acquaintance.

I do not think you to give pure what the convergence of the did not have good demned spy, or a treacherous Indian. The boy should have asked you about the cold and we without one thing on her head or should not wish you to give up all your fineds for him. However, if you desire to continue the should not wish you to give up all your fineds for him. However, if his object for him to any of them.

Olive's Jealousy.

Clear the think the youngle of the fillow said: the fine heroic parts for you to call. However, if his object the cold and we with the case for you to call. However, if his object the should only the property of the fillow said: the cold and we will not said the fine heroic parts for you to call. However, if his object the cold and we will not said the cold and we will not s

THIS SUM SPELLS SPAIN

SPADE

The oldest sister seems to like now of my going with a girl friend whom for brother, who is younger than myself, but she thinks he is older. How can I stay with my good stay with a girl friend whom for brother, who is younger than myself, but she thinks he is older. How can I stay with my good stay but she thinks he is older. How can I stay with my sweetheart or the girl? tell her that I am the oldest? P. A. S.

Casually mention during the convertion is reasonable you will give her up if Proper to Send Candy.

The Man or the Girl.

candy after having met her only and games, thus giving her the see her for two months? Am in love of his children. So there was an eswith this girl.

A. F. tranged and unfriendly eye ever fixed pain while the children swayed in help-It is proper to send the girl candy who she felt was far too much to the schoolroom, who she felt was far too much to the feet was f

Remember This, Girls.

when everybody can get a seat in he street cars.

Facing the Situation.

667 WON'T countenance this deal!" "Then," resignedly replied the junior member, "that puts another face on it." —Baltimore American.

amy is a serious offense.

promised that if he stands a good spring first instructions in boxing."

with terror. taken charge of her own room, de-claring she needed the exercise, and pression.

THE NEW EAST LYNNE

By Clara Morris Author of "Stage Life," "A Pasteboard Crown," and Others.

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS.

Philip Keith, a clever, selfish New York doctor, marries beautiful Daphne Cuyler. Other members of the household are Philip's grandfather, Prof. Keith, and his ward, Olive Marr, who secretly loves Philip. Daphne May, and Philip have a daughter, Daphne May, and a baby son. Belden, a dissolute millionaire, is in love with Daphne and tries in your hose effection. Belden, while she had perforce spoken to old Louise that the confused performed the confused performed that ancient serving woman is not the service of the confused performed that ancient serving woman had stared so confused the confused performed that the confused performed the confused performed the confused performed the confused performed that the confused performed the confused aire, is in love with Daphne and tries in vain to win her affection. Belden, while she is dazed from morphia, has her kidnapped and carried to Montreal. There at a hotel he implores her to divorce Philip and to be part of malon of malon. he implores her to divorce Philip and to become his own wife. Belden is stricken with paralysis. Daphne escapes and starts back for New York. The train is wrecked.
Daphne is taken, terribly disfigured, to a Montreal hospital. A little French governess, Denise Varide, whom she has befriended, is killed and her body shipped to the Keith home by mistake as Daphne's. Philip thus believes Daphne is dead and that she was false to him. A year or so later he marries Olive who is secretly unkind to Daphne's daughter and to her invalid son. Five years later Daphne (who has found refuge with the family of a Canadian dector) obtains the position of governess for her own children. She is disguised and calls herself **Sime. Varide." Prof. Keith, alone of all the household, recognizes her. He fears lest the others may in time suspect her indentity.

CHAPTER XV. (Continued.) Disguised!

"Yes, your hands. They are very beautiful, and they are ten years younger than your face and figure. May strung beads at the window. Mrs. Keith is observant, and very quick at putting two and two together. A Family Scene. Then, too-pardon me-I think she expartly open door, reached to the ear pected to find in you a sort of fawn-ing, confidential gossip, and your grave his room to change wet garments for reserve has displeased her so much she will be on the alert to find cause of in. 'Twas as Madame held the toasted complaint against you."

"It was good of you to warn me, story ostume in the shape of a pair of thick lady, with all the armies" black lace mitts.

Hans Andersens and Lewis Carrolls, great engine of attack-what was that For just as a murderer is often irresist- called?" ibly drawn to the place of crime, so the professor by his gullty knowledge fretted, "what is that word? Hurry, seemed to be drawn to the danger zone please!" seemed to be drawn to the danger zone—the schoolroom. And he often sat aside, close up to the window, reading his Greek or Latin, or pretending to the cried triumphantly. "A thing I suppose they throw cars with." read, while the children were studying threw cats with!" r reciting. And always when Mme. Varide give May her music lesson downstairs he sat with the little lad commanded: Philip, helping him along the somewhat morsel-he has fairly won it!" thorny path of learning.
It was surprising to see how quickly

Madame had won the children's liking. Madame had won the children's liking. In the house! If I wasn't so inferrefor, truth to tell, she worked them hard, ally damp I'd slip in and share the fun but she was such a delightful playwe have just quarrelled on account studied as when they drew a map of English settlers. She was also ever claimed: "Just see old Clutterbuck" ready to be a defeated army or a con-

D. F.

All this greatly annoyed the ever or neuralgia or something!" jealous Olive, who had planned things will not believe that an ounce of predifferently, believing that the children, vention is better than a pound of cure. detesting a teacher, would turn matu- growled the Professor, as he thumped rally to her for their pleasures, treats and games, thus giving her the chance tention; shook his fist furiously at her ce, illness not permitting me to to pose before Philip, as the beloved then clapped his hand to his jaw and who she felt was far too much to her pupils, but whom she had not yet. The lest. Kemember This, Girls.

LIVE—What an improvement it been able to charge with presumption, since she maintained toward the mem have just time for one hunt or a drill, will be if the time ever comes that defensible however the family a faint touch of for dinner." that deferential humility of manner for dinner." peculiar to the woman in service.

That the improvement in the chil. estly: "What a lovely alligator greatdan pever be sure then that she was pretty. dren's manners had been commented would be, if he'd lay under the soft upon by Dr. Kelth caused Olive great offense. would be, if he'd and snap at us," member of the dren at table with us all." lantly answered: "Perhaps that is wiry they have im- And May, whose sense of humor was Better Be Careful.

OLALY—I wouldn't marry a lot of men.

Polly—I should think not. Big French madame's training."

But quite the most remarkable of most remarkable of the snake of the a child growing cowardly from dread of a blow.

The old man flashed a piercing glander of a blow. 'riad you noticed it, grandad?"

old gentleman hurriedly answered: "Oh, yes, he's got quite all over that like lightning the thought flashed now. Only yesterday, flerce as new through his mind.
milk, he threw himself between May "She has committed folies perhaps

The doctor threw back his head and Meanwhile the doctor had found Olive

"What a Horrible Thing!"

plaster jacket now, because Madame has this house?"

"Oh, what a horrible thing for a wo- band for assistance." beating the table, called delightedly; men in service here, if you mean "Good good for the old girl—who knows among them, and each one possesses her business! She's not training a name of her own."

coward in her school-room!" And just as the professor began to Interference, was rather exerting as to ventilation.

(Copyrighted, 1907, by Clara Morris.) | &c. The parlor maid watted at table SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS. in the school-room, while the waitress > part of valor, and had avoided further speech with the old cook, who had faithfully served her from bridehood days to the last one of wrack and ruin and headlong flight.

All one day an icy rain had fallen, and the half-holiday had been spent in the school-room, and the old-fashioned house being generously furnished forth with real fireplaces that had never been dishonored by the presence st of the hypocritical gas-log, there was still a red glow of hot coals in the grate, in front of which sat Madame Varide teasting on a long knitting needle a last bit of marsh-mallow for Philip's greedy, small mouth-when the Professor should have ended the tale of olden time he was telling, while the boy leaned against his knee, and

A gale of laughter, escaping from the omplaint against you."

Madame looked gravely at her hands morsel high, out of his reach, demand-Madame looked gravely at her hands ing first of the lad how much he could remember of the Professors

"Oh, I remember all!" he cried, fairly Professor: I shall profit by your keenness." And from that time forth she jumping up and down from eagerness. added another weird touch to her "I remember the pretty queen, fighting "And the great engraved emeralds,

In the schoolroom certain books of and peacock fans and Nubian girls ancient lore hobnobbed with spellers waving them," added May.

and readers, grammars and geographies. "And," suggested Madame, "their Amid shouts of laughter, greatdad himself gurgling and chuckling, he And the unseen watcher at the door muttered.

"By Jove! this is the pleasantest spot

"That pig-headed old creature simply

May, with head on one side, said earn-

Madame turned her face aside sudden-"I'm sure," she had exclaimed vex- ly, while, with an expression of unedly, "I've always allowed the chil- speakable disgust, the old gentleman finally made answer, "Wouldn't you And the doctor had rather ungal- like me to play the great serpent is Eden for a change?"

proved so much upstairs, under the conspicuous by its absence, answered joyfully:

red-stained face, no shamed, downcas Olive Keith's face blazed red, and the eyes; only an unconscious calm, and clear eyes of tender amusement-and and Madame Varide and the danger of a six-pound dog, who barked most savagely at them."

"She has committed tolles perhaps but she has not sinned. I would be lieve her bare word against the sworr testimony of a world!"

laughed delightedly, while the professor in a state of nervous irritation, and, as damp and cold, he ransacked the bu reau for fresh garments, she exclaimed "Philip, don't you think it is time "He is just about crazy to get off that for you to exert a little authority is

"I don't know why." he answered inexamination in those mighty studies of differently. "I have supposed that you his, and that as soon as he is free of ruled supreme here and ordered your the restraining jacket, she will give him household after the manner of other housekeepers, without calling on a hus take hope and courage and allowed him- "You know very well I refer to the self to examine once more his precious governors. She claims entirely to old manuscripts, something happened much authority over our children. Shi that set every nerve in his body a-thrill grows too pressing, too dogmatic, to magisterial. Why, she has actually challenged my right to their obedience. He looked at her with a quizzical en

This Is How the Fashionable High Gibson Collar Is Made

By Abby Chandler Greene.

HE girl who would be smart in her make-up must wear a Gibson collar, one that reaches up behind the ears. It is quite the latest fad. Odds and ends of lace may be utilized in making it. First a shape must be cut of Many waists of rather plain description are worn this winter, and to go with together lengthwise. The edge is trimmed with a roll of white lawn caught to plain white paper, with the proper length in front and high behind the ears and these the Gibson lace collars are particularly smart. In shape the collars are back. It is held up with wide feather-bone which is made for this purpose, or all higher than they have been for some time, which height is especially appropriate for winter wear. At the same time they must not cut or otherwise dis-

The illustration shows a collar made with Valenciennes lace insertion sewed

(To Be Continu